

Rachel & Josh Receive Help Through United Way Partnership

We never know when hardship could hit our lives. Rachel and Josh were less than a block from their Janesville home last November when a drunk driver crossed the centerline and hit their vehicle head on. Rachel, fortunately, had fairly minor injuries. They did not expect Josh to live.

The good news? Rhyme Business Products and United Way partnered together through Rock Responds. Rock Responds is a service of First Call, an information and referral program for Rock County. Rock Responds is an email listserv where area organizations, businesses and individuals can donate items to help those who truly need it.

Thankfully, Rachel and Josh's four children were not in the vehicle at the time of the accident but the car seats were unusable because of the impact. Rhyme and the Janesville Fire Department donated car seats. Because of Rhyme, the four children had a bright Christmas with plenty of gifts under the tree.

More good news....Josh is slowly recovering from his injuries and walking with a walker. He is also making weekend visits home. Amy Randell of Milton, Rachel's mom, said, "United Way of North Rock County has been such a huge help to us and her family. For those who donate to United Way, you hope you are never on the receiving end of services. But if a situation arises, please know that your money is truly helping out someone that is so grateful and truly needs the help."

Reach out a hand to one and you influence the condition of all. When we partner together to make our world better, like Rhyme and United Way, we Live United.
